INTRODUCTION

2 Sheriff Arpaio and Chief Deputy Sheridan, the two top commanders of the Maricopa 3 County Sheriff's Office ("MCSO"), have repeatedly and willfully defied the rule of law and 4 this Court. During the course of the underlying litigation, they spoliated evidence and 5 violated their obligations to preserve and to produce critical evidence. They, along with co-6 contemnors Sands and Sousa, willfully ignored and circumvented the Court's preliminary 7 injunction order. Since the Court issued its Supplemental Permanent Injunction (Doc. 606) 8 in October 2013, Defendants have openly defied the Court's authority in front of 9 subordinates, repeatedly violated the Court's discovery orders, deliberately misled the Court-10 appointed Monitor, and willfully subverted MCSO's internal affairs system to evade being 11 held responsible for their misconduct. And even after they were called to account in a civil 12 contempt proceeding, Arpaio and Sheridan continued to flout the rule of law by lying on the 13 witness stand. At the same time, Defendants have engaged in ongoing and gross 14 noncompliance with key provisions of the Supplemental Permanent Injunction (see infra at 15 Part I).

16 In short, for more than eight years, Sheriff Arpaio has defied this Court and his 17 obligations in the litigation. He has proved unwilling to comply with the law. Strong 18 remedies are needed to protect the rights of the Plaintiff class.

LEGAL STANDARD

20 Plaintiffs' requested remedies are well supported by controlling case law. When 21 defendant officials violate court orders, as has been found here, the district court has "broad 22 power to fashion a remedy." See Swann v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Bd. of Ed., 402 U.S. 1, 16 23 (1971); see also Brown v. Plata, 563 U.S. 493, 511, 516 (2011); Hutto v. Finney, 437 U.S.
24 678, 690 (1978); Milliken v. Bradley, 433 U.S. 267, 281-82 (1977). In such cases, and even 25 absent a finding of civil contempt, the district court may order broad injunctive measures, 26 including imposition of detailed institution-wide policies and the transfer of control of the 27 agency to special masters or receivers. See, e.g., Swann, 402 U.S. at 28; Plata, 563 U.S. at 28

1 511; Stone v. City & Cty. of San Francisco, 968 F.2d 850, 859 n.18 (9th Cir. 1992); Allen v.
2 City of Oakland., No. 00-CV-4599-TEH, Order re: Compliance Director, Doc. 885 (N.D.
3 Cal. Dec. 12, 2012) (copy attached hereto at Tab 1). As discussed below, such injunctive 4 relief may include barring the contemnor from engaging in certain work or responsibilities 5 until he or she demonstrates the ability to comply with court orders. See, e.g., Whittaker
6 Corp. v. Execuair Corp., 953 F.2d 510, 518 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing Lance v. Plummer, 353 7 F.2d 585, 592 (5th Cir. 1965)). Remedies for civil contempt may also include compensatory 8 damages to the victims of the violations, prospective fines that can be purged by compliance, 9 and attorneys' fees and costs. See, e.g., Koninklijke Philips Elecs. N.V. v. KXD Tech., Inc., 10 539 F.3d 1039, 1042-43 (9th Cir. 2008); see also infra Part VI.

11 PLAINTIFFS' PROPOSED REMEDIES

12 I. Enlarging the Monitor's Authority To Enforce the Court's Orders

13 Defendants' willful contempt on three counts is part of a larger and ongoing pattern of 14 intentional violations of the Court's orders and Sheriff Arpaio's and Chief Deputy Sheridan's 15 avowed resistance to the Court's authority. Findings of Fact (Doc. 1677) ("Contempt 16 Findings") at 1-3. As a remedy for the civil contempt, the Court should grant the Monitor 17 additional powers to command directly the implementation of measures needed to bring the 18 MCSO into compliance with the Court's prior orders.

19 Defendants' egregious and continuing noncompliance with the Court's orders, 20 including key portions of the Supplemental Permanent Injunction, poses a continuing danger 21 to class members. The Court-appointed Monitor's Seventh Report (Doc. 1667), which 22 covers the period from October to December 2015, demonstrates that Defendants have 23 violated numerous deadlines in the Supplemental Permanent Injunction and that the overall 24 pace of compliance with the Supplemental Permanent Injunction is unacceptably slow. As 25 of the end of 2015, MCSO's Phase 1 compliance—which looks only to whether court-26 mandated policies and procedures have been promulgated and whether personnel have been 27 trained on those policies and procedures—stood at only 61%, despite the passage of more 28

1 than two years since the Court issued the Supplemental Permanent Injunction. Seventh 2 Report at 9. MCSO has reached only 38% Phase 2 compliance, which measures actual 3 compliance with the court-mandated policies. Id. Moreover, the Seventh Report indicates 4 that MCSO improved its Phase 1 compliance by only 4% over the previous quarter, and 5 improved its Phase 2 compliance by only 1%. Compare Seventh Report at 9 with Monitor's 6 Sixth Report (Doc. 1621) at 8. This pace is unacceptable.

7 The details behind the bare percentage points are even more troubling, as Defendants 8 have missed, by a margin of years, firm deadlines imposed by the Court for completion of 9 key tasks in the Supplemental Permanent Injunction. To list only a few examples:

- 10 • Defendants were to complete an initial training for MCSO supervisors within 180 11 days of the effective date of the Supplemental Permanent Injunction—that is, by 12 March 31, 2014. To date, more than two years after that court-imposed deadline, that supervisors' training has not been given. Seventh Report at 55-56.
- 13 • The Supplemental Permanent Injunction (§ 61) provided that body-worn cameras 14 should have been issued to all patrol vehicles that make traffic stops within two years 15 of the effective date, or by October 2, 2015. But by the end of 2015, Defendants had 16 only fully implemented body-worn cameras in a single patrol district, and their draft operational manual on body-worn cameras had not been approved by the Monitor. Id.
17 at 85, 87-88. Moreover, Defendants went ahead and implemented a training on body-worn cameras even though the Monitor had not approved the lesson plan. After 18 observing the training, the Monitor noted that Defendants' failure to address the 19 Monitor's concerns in the training program may lead to failures to comply with policy in the field. Seventh Report at 58.
- 20 • Defendants are required to conduct periodic analyses of traffic stop data to determine 21 if there are warning signs or indicia of racial profiling or improper conduct by deputies. Supplemental Permanent Injunction § 64. The Monitor's Seventh Report 22 (at 88-90) details Defendants' numerous delays and failures to provide timely information relating to this requirement. Defendants had not achieved even Phase 1 23 compliance by the end of 2015, violating the Supplemental Permanent Injunction's 24 deadline for full compliance within 180 days of the effective date (§§ 50, 52), or 25 March 31, 2014.

26 Based on these failures to comply with basic provisions of the Supplemental 27 Permanent Injunction more than two years after the deadlines set, and the record of the 28 contemnors' willful defiance of the Court's orders, it is clear that typical measures of remediation have proven ineffective and the existing powers of the Monitor "to assist with implementation of, and assess compliance with" the Injunction are inadequate. The 1 Supplemental Permanent Injunction should therefore be modified to permit the Monitor to 2 directly command the implementation of those measures needed to bring the MCSO into 3 compliance with the Court's orders, including but not limited to: directing MCSO personnel 4 to take specific actions to achieve compliance, the assignment of specific individuals in or 5 out of MCSO units charged with compliance tasks, and the expenditure of resources 6 necessary to achieve compliance.

7 Courts have ordered such authority, and more, in similar circumstances, using their 8 "broad equitable remedial powers" to enforce and effectuate their orders and judgments.
9 Stone, 968 F.2d at 861. "[F]ederal courts are not reduced to issuing injunctions against state 10 officers and hoping for compliance." Plata v. Schwarzenegger, No. C01-1351 TEH, 2005 11 WL 2932253, at *23-25 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 3, 2005) (quoting Hutto v. Finney, 437 U.S., 678, 12 690 (1979)). Indeed, under similar circumstances where an agency has failed to comply with 13 an injunction and institutional commanders have demonstrated their lack of leadership, 14 courts have imposed the more drastic remedy of a receivership. See id.; Allen v. City of 15 Oakland, No. 00-CV-4599-TEH, Doc. 885, at 4-6 (giving Compliance Director expanded 16 power over personnel decisions as remedy to police department's lack of progress on 17 injunction, on consent of parties); Campbell v. McGruder, No. 1462-71 (WBB), Findings 18 and Order Appointing Receiver, at 7-10 (D.D.C. July 11, 1995) (copy attached hereto at Tab 19 3) (endowing receiver with broad power to create system and procedures to ensure 20 compliance with injunction); United States v. Jefferson Cty., No. CV-75-S-666-S, Order 21 Appointing Receiver, at 1-10 (N.D. Ala. Oct. 25, 2013) (copy attached hereto at Tab 4) 22 (appointing receiver with power over county personnel board after finding defendant county 23 to be in civil contempt of injunction); Shaw v. Allen, 771 F. Supp. 760, 764 (S.D. W. Va.
24 1990) (appointing receiver to "devise and implement such plans and procedures as shall be 25 necessary to ensure that the basic privileges and rights of inmates are recognized and 26 observed"); Newman v. State of Ala., 466 F. Supp. 628, 635 (M.D. Ala. 1979); Morgan v.
27 McDonough, 540 F.2d 527, 533 (1st Cir. 1976); Wayne County Jail Inmates, et al. v. Wayne

1 County Chief Executive Officer, 444 N.W.2d 549, 560–61 (Mich. Ct. App. 1989); Crain v.
2 Bordenkircher, 376 S.E.2d 140, 143 (W.Va.1988).

3 II. Enlarging the Monitor’s Authority in Internal Affairs and Discipline Matters

4 The Court has found that Sheriff Arpaio and his designees have subverted MCSO’s 5 internal affairs (“IA”) and discipline system “to avoid accountability for themselves, their 6 protégés, and those who have implemented their flawed policies” and continue to attempt to 7 conceal wrongdoing. Contempt Findings ¶ 889. Plaintiffs urge that the Court order the 8 remedies described in Paragraphs 903, 904, and 905 of the contempt findings, and that all 9 decision-making responsibility for those categories of investigations, including discipline, be 10 given to the Monitor.¹

11 The Court should also suspend the authority of Sheriff Arpaio or any of his designees 12 to alter in any way the findings of policy violations or disciplinary decisions with respect to 13 any of these investigations. Permitting the Sheriff to retain that authority would likely render 14 these investigations futile, as demonstrated above by previously mishandled investigations.
15 Removing this authority from Sheriff Arpaio is well within the Court’s inherent power to 16 “invoke the weight of the judicial authority if state and local authorities, who have the 17 primary responsibility for curing constitutional violations, fail in their affirmative 18 obligations.” See Milliken, 433 U.S. at 281 (citation omitted). “[F]ederal courts possess 19 whatever powers are necessary to remedy constitutional violations because they are charged 20 with protecting these rights.” Stone, 968 F.2d at 861. This includes the transfer of decision-
21 making control to an independent authority. See, e.g., Plata, 563 U.S. at 511; Swann, 402 22 U.S. at 28.

23 A. Paragraph 903: Invalidation of Past Investigations and Discipline

24 Plaintiffs urge that all “past investigations, disciplinary decisions, and/or grievance 25 decisions found to be insufficient, invalid, or void” in the Court’s findings should be re-

26 ¹ If the Court is inclined to order that authority over any of these categories of investigations be 27 placed with someone other than the Monitor, Plaintiffs respectfully request the opportunity to 28 nominate candidates.

1 investigated and re-determined by the Monitor. Plaintiffs propose that all cases listed in 2 Defendants' current spreadsheet of "Armendariz-related" IA cases, Doc. 1673-1, including 3 those that remain open, Doc. 1674 (under seal), should be included in this category for re-4 investigation and re-determination. These cases were infected by the participation of 5 Captain Bailey, who had a conflict of interest as a former commander over most of the 6 principals in those cases and who was found by this Court to have misled the Monitor, 7 Contempt Findings ¶ 711, and Chief Deputy Sheridan, who appointed Bailey and was the 8 ultimate authority over all of those cases, id. ¶ 889. Given the numerous instances of biased-
9 decision making, intentional manipulation, and negligent mishandling during IA
10 investigations and disciplinary proceedings by Chief Deputy Sheridan, who remains Sheriff 11 Arpaio's designee for IA and discipline matters, Plaintiffs have no confidence in the integrity 12 of any of these investigations.

13 The process for redoing past deficient investigations and completing new 14 investigations must be completed in a timely fashion. It has now been more than two years
15 since much of the underlying misconduct came to light and finally resolving these IA cases 16 is necessary to safeguard the interests of the Plaintiff class.² Aside from imposing discipline 17 where warranted, an immediate, open, and thorough investigation of the misconduct is 18 needed to root out systemic problems and to prevent recurrences of similar conduct in the 19 future. Findings of misconduct can inform the remedies necessary to correct past practices

21 ² To the extent that Defendants or any employee subject to these investigations contend that the 22 statutory scheme set forth in Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 38-1101, et seq.— including the requirement that 23 employers make a good faith effort to complete investigations within 180 days (§ 38-1110)— 24 prevents the issuance of discipline in these cases, that argument has been rejected by this Court.
25 Doc. 795 at 20-21. First, the statute has not prevented MCSO from issuing discipline in some IA
26 cases beyond the 180-day period. Contempt Findings ¶ 716. And in any event, investigations 27 conducted by an independent authority, such as the Monitor, "are not investigations conducted by an 28 'employer' and do not implicate the statutory protections." Doc. 795 at 20. Any discipline issued as a result of these investigations would be pursuant to this Court's inherent powers to ensure compliance with its own orders and to cure constitutional violations. Further, there is evidence that the timing on certain investigations was manipulated by MCSO officials so as to create a justification to impose no (or very minor) discipline. Contempt Findings ¶ 578. MCSO should be estopped from using such misconduct to its own benefit. See, e.g., Estate of Amaro v. City of Oakland, 653 F.3d 808, 813-15 (9th Cir. 2011). There is no justification for preventing the issuance of discipline under the order of this Court.

1 and to prevent further harm to the Plaintiff class, and should be taken into consideration in 2 any future disciplinary proceedings against deputies who are found to have violated MCSO 3 policy or other laws. These findings would also permit Plaintiffs to seek other relief, 4 including the exclusion of employees found to have engaged in certain misconduct from 5 positions and responsibilities that can expose members of the Plaintiff class to wrongdoing.

6 B. Paragraph 904: New Investigations into Uninvestigated Misconduct

7 Plaintiffs urge that the Monitor should undertake an investigation of all uninvestigated 8 misconduct that has been revealed to date, including incidents involving any harm to the 9 interests of the Plaintiff class, policy violations in the handling of internal investigations, and 10 untruthfulness during or in connection with these proceedings. This must include at a 11 minimum, the following areas of investigation:

12 (1) The mishandling of internal investigations by Chief Deputy Sheridan, Captain 13 Bailey, Sergeant Tennyson, Detective Zebro, and any other employee who the Monitor 14 determines to have played a role in the deficient investigations. These violations include but 15 are not limited to the manipulation of timing on investigations to influence discipline, biased 16 decision-making, improper investigative techniques, and the deliberate or negligent 17 mishandling of investigations.

18 (2) All uninvestigated incidents of untruthfulness set forth in the Court's May 13, 19 2016 Order, including misstatements made to the Court by Chief Deputy Sheridan 20 (Contempt Findings ¶¶ 87, 229-30, 326, 333-39, 348, 385, 816, 823), Chief Trombi (id. ¶¶ 21 517, 521), and Captain Bailey (id. ¶¶ 342, 348). The handling of the 1,459 IDs by Sheridan, 22 Bailey, and others should also be investigated.³ Id. ¶¶ 294-348. Investigations must also be 23 opened for any MCSO personnel who claimed that confiscated IDs were used for training 24 purposes, to determine whether those statements were untruthful. Id. ¶ 638.

25 ³ To the extent that members of the Monitor team were involved in the events underlying this 26 investigation or others, those individuals have been walled off from others on the Monitor 27 team pursuant to the Court's November 20, 2014 Order (Doc. 795) at 18, and 28 should remain walled off from those members of the Monitor team with responsibility for these new investigations.

1 (3) Property that may have been improperly seized or inventoried and not been 2 investigated to date. As found by the Court, “MCSO initiated investigations into only 28 of 3 over a thousand items of personal property found at Deputy Armendariz’s house.” Id. ¶ 720.
4 Investigations of all other improperly handled items, including IDs, license plates, drugs, 5 weapons, credit cards, bank cards, cell phones, and money must be conducted.

6 (4) The mishandling of the Court’s May 14, 2014 Order by Chief Deputy Sheridan 7 and Chief Trombi. Id. ¶ 233.

8 (5) Detective Frei’s mishandling of property and attempting to destroy evidence 9 relating to his investigation. Id. ¶¶ 699-700.

10 (6) Uninvestigated possible misconduct in the IA investigation of Mary Ann 11 McKessy’s allegations about Detective Mackiewicz, including the conflict of interest in the 12 participation of Chief Deputy Sheridan, Captain Bailey, and Sergeant Tennyson, in the 13 investigation of their friend, and whether that conflict actually affected the IA investigation.
14 Id. ¶¶ 766-825.

15 For incidents in which the Court’s findings provide a sufficient factual basis to 16 demonstrate a policy violation, Plaintiffs request that the Monitor determine appropriate 17 discipline based on the Court’s findings without any further investigation or delay.
18 Employees subject to such adverse findings would still be entitled to any post-disciplinary 19 procedures.

20 C. Paragraph 905: Future Investigations Relating to the Interests of the 21 Plaintiff Class

22 Plaintiffs urge the Court to order that the Monitor have final approval and discipline 23 authority in all IA cases involving policy violations bearing on issues related to this case, 24 including all potential policy violations relating to improper detentions, racial bias, 25 immigration enforcement, and the confiscation of property. Proper internal oversight over 26 these matters must be undertaken by an independent authority without regard to whether the 27 victim is a specifically member of the Plaintiff class. Because the facts found by the Court

1 indicate systemic problems in these areas, and because the Court has found that the Plaintiff 2 class has been disproportionately impacted by those systemic failures, id. ¶¶ 888-89, all of 3 these categories of misconduct must be given careful scrutiny to prevent future harms to 4 members of the Plaintiff class.

5 For the protection of the Plaintiff class, it is critical that MCSO reform its IA and 6 discipline process (see infra Part III) and that IA investigators and commanders learn to 7 conduct investigations and disciplinary proceedings with integrity. Thus, MCSO should 8 itself conduct these future investigations, pursuant to reformed policies, and the Monitor 9 should have unfettered access to those investigations and proceedings; the authority to 10 override improper actions in the course of those investigations; and the authority to re-11 determine findings or disciplinary measures that are inconsistent with revised policies. In 12 order to carry out this function, the Monitor must also have the authority to guide the 13 investigation and discipline process, including the power to: identify suspected policy 14 violations or criminal misconduct for investigation; review and modify investigatory plans; 15 intervene in the investigation process when necessary, for example, to require certain 16 interviews, to order that a certain investigatory approach or technique be used, to stop 17 problematic interviews and to provide direction on how such interviews should be 18 conducted; direct steps necessary to ensure the disciplinary process will be completed in a 19 timely manner; intervene in the disciplinary process, including reviewing initial findings and 20 recommendations, and participating or giving direction in any subsequent part of the process, 21 such as predetermination or “name clearing” hearings.

22 The Court’s findings show that providing such powers to the Monitor is necessary to 23 ensure that the Defendants’ subversion of the IA and disciplinary process does not continue 24 to the Plaintiff class’s detriment. Notably, Sheriff Arpaio testified during the contempt
25 hearing that he would not object to the Monitor conducting internal investigations of MCSO 26 personnel, and that it was possible he would not object to the Monitor having the power to 27 make final dispositions on discipline. October 1, 2015 Hearing Tr. 2037:20-2038:15, 28

2041:14-2042:14. And courts have imposed similar measures on a record of noncompliance. See, e.g., Plata v. Schwarzenegger, No. C01-1351, Order Appointing Receiver, at 4-8 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 14, 2006) (copy attached hereto at Tab 2) (giving Compliance Director power over, among other things, all personnel decisions including promotions, demotions, and disciplinary actions, as remedy to agency’s lack of progress on injunction); Allen v. City of Oakland, No. 00-CV-4599-TEH, Doc. 885, at 4-8 (same, on consent of parties); Campbell v. McGruder, No. 1462-71 (WBB), Findings and Order Appointing Receiver, at 7-10 (D.D.C. July 11, 1995) (copy attached hereto at Tab 3) (endowing receiver with broad power to create system and procedures to ensure compliance with injunction); United States v. Jefferson Cty., No. CV-75-S-666-S, Order Appointing Receiver, at 1-10 (N.D. Ala. Oct. 25, 2013) (copy attached hereto at Tab 4) (appointing receiver with power over county personnel board after finding defendant county to be in civil contempt of injunction); Wayne Cty. Jail Inmates, 444 N.W.2d at 555-56 (upholding lower court’s transfer to receiver of “all authority with respect to the operation of the jail that formerly resided in the Sheriff of Wayne County” after lack of progress on injunction).

Finally, these additional new powers of the Monitor over future investigations should be set forth as an amendment to the Supplemental Permanent Injunction, and the Court should provide that Defendants must demonstrate to the Court’s satisfaction that they are in compliance with sound IA and disciplinary practices. The Court should maintain jurisdiction until Defendants have demonstrated their full compliance with this provision and all others in the Supplemental Permanent Injunction, for a period of no less than three years.

Supplemental Permanent Injunction ¶ 3.

III. Reforms to MCSO’s Internal Affairs and Discipline Policies and Practices

This Court found that “Defendants did not make a good faith effort to fairly and impartially investigate and discipline misconduct” and misused use the IA system to “escape accountability,” Contempt Findings at 2, including in the IA 2014-543 case concerning violations of the Court’s preliminary injunction, id. ¶¶ 405-583. As a remedy for the civil

1 contempt, and as an exercise of the Court’s authority to impose injunctive relief to protect 2 the rights of the Plaintiff class, Plaintiffs request the following reforms to MCSO’s IA and 3 discipline policies and procedures. While the Court did not enter Plaintiffs’ originally 4 proposed remedial measures relating to IA following the trial decision in May 2013, 5 circumstances have changed.⁴ The Court’s findings on systemic deficiencies in the existing 6 policies and procedures demonstrate the need for comprehensive reforms.

7 A. Appointment of a New Commander of the Professional Standards Bureau
8 and Barring Personnel Who Have Engaged in Misconduct in IA Cases
9 from Future IA Responsibilities

10 The Court found that actual and apparent conflicts of interest and biases continue to 11 permeate the MCSO’s IA system. Strong reforms must be ordered, including the 12 appointment of new, outside leadership over the Professional Standards Bureau (“PSB”), the 13 removal of IA authority from several MCSO officials, and promulgation of new policies.

14 MCSO has demonstrated an inability to ensure that IA investigations are free from 15 improper motivations to absolve employees of wrongdoing. The Court found that MCSO 16 officials from the top down, including Sheriff Arpaio, Chief Deputy Sheridan, Chief Olson, 17 Captain Bailey, Sergeant Tennyson, and Detective Zebro, intentionally permitted conflicts of 18 interests and biases to enter into decision-making over IA matters, with an impact on 19 outcomes. Contempt Findings ¶¶ 407-08, 440-455, 484-89, 660-68, 756-58, 814-25, 889.

20 The Court’s findings show that no one currently within the MCSO hierarchy can 21 properly oversee PSB. In order to remove the taint created by the past instances of bias and 22 favoritism—deliberately imposed by the two commanders at the very top of the 23 organization—and to ensure that future violations of the class members’ rights are properly 24 addressed, the Court should appoint a PSB commander who has no previous connections 25 with MCSO, with an opportunity for all parties to nominate candidates. This reform has 26 ⁴ Plaintiffs do not believe expert testimony is necessary at this point. If, however, the Court desires 27 to hear from an expert on specific issues or permits Defendants to present expert testimony, 28 Plaintiffs request the opportunity to present an expert.

1 been used in other jurisdictions, including most recently with the New Orleans Police 2 Department. See Doc. 1590-5 (New Orleans Police Dep't Decree at 95).

3 In addition, based on the record of clear misconduct during IA investigations, the 4 Court should prohibit Sheriff Arpaio, Chief Deputy Sheridan, Chief Olson, Captain Bailey, 5 Sergeant Tennyson, and Detective Zebro from having any involvement in criminal or 6 administrative internal investigations and the disciplinary process in the category of cases 7 subject to the Monitor's final decision-making power. Their authority to participate in these 8 matters may be restored if they later demonstrate to the Court's satisfaction that they will not 9 engage in further illegal subversion of the IA and discipline process. See Whittaker Corp., 10 953 F.2d at 518 (barring defendant from engaging in business activities in which he had 11 demonstrated illegal conduct and permitting purge of the injunction) (citing Lance, 353 F.2d 12 at 592 (barring deputy sheriff from serving in law enforcement until he could demonstrate to 13 the court that he would comply with the law)).

14 B. Revision of MCSO's IA and Discipline Policies and Operations Manuals

15 Based upon the Court's findings, it is apparent that a comprehensive review and 16 revision to MCSO's various policies and operations manuals relating to IA investigations 17 and the discipline process must be conducted to eliminate the deficiencies found by the 18 Court. This review and revision should be subject to the input of all parties and the approval 19 of the Monitor and ultimately the Court. The policy reforms should include, at a minimum:

20 1. Conflicts of Interest

21 MCSO should be required to develop policies to prevent conflicts of interest and bias 22 from entering into all employment-related decisions, including internal investigations.
23 MCSO personnel must be forbidden to participate in any IA investigation or disciplinary 24 proceeding when they have a close personal relationship with the principal or a witness.
25 MCSO must also be required to establish clear eligibility guidelines for selection of 26 employees handling internal investigations, as either an investigator or supervisor. At a 27 minimum, these guidelines must ensure that employees assigned to handle IA matters do not 28

1 present systematic conflicts of interest (as Captain Bailey did), have been adequately trained, 2 have a record of good behavior and performance, and do not have a record of repeated 3 deficiencies or policy violations. Further, PSB must be required to review the eligibility of 4 any employee selected outside of PSB to handle IA matters.

5 2. Establishing Uniform IA Practices throughout MCSO

6 The contempt findings demonstrate that many MCSO IA cases are investigated not by 7 PSB, but by sergeants or lieutenants in the Bureau or Division to which the principal is 8 assigned. Contempt Findings ¶¶ 592-95. Nonetheless, MCSO has no policies to ensure that 9 consistent practices are followed and that consistent training is given to all IA investigators 10 across the agency. This has resulted in inconsistent and inadequate investigations. Id. ¶ 596
11 (noting that each division had different interpretations of such policies). The policy reforms 12 must address these serious deficiencies. PSB should also be required to audit and to review 13 substantively all internal investigations conducted by non-PSB investigators.

14 3. Ensuring Fair and Consistent Discipline, Including Proper Record- 15 Keeping, Documentation, and Tracking of IA Cases

16 The Court also found that in IA cases related to this litigation, MCSO failed to ensure 17 that proper and consistent discipline was imposed. For example, in IA cases it deemed to be 18 related to this litigation, MCSO deliberately chose to count multiple separate instances of 19 misconduct as a single instance of misconduct for purposes of assessing the employee's past 20 disciplinary record in future discipline cases. Contempt Findings ¶¶ 510-15. And in several 21 cases, including the 2014-542 and 2014-543 cases directly relating to this litigation, the 22 disciplinary matrix was misapplied or manipulated in order to impose more lenient
23 discipline. Id. ¶¶ 501-15, 532-37, 589. Further compounding these problems, IA 24 investigators and supervisors were not required to and consistently failed to document the 25 reasons for their findings or discipline decisions at any stage of the process. See id. ¶¶ 438, 26 553-55; Sept. 24, 2015 Hearing Tr. 1207.

1 New policies and training must ensure that decisions as to discipline are consistent, 2 pursuant to clear policy, adequately documented, and subject to proper oversight. This 3 includes provisions for adequate record-keeping and transparency, including written 4 justification for all findings (Sustained, Not Sustained, Exonerated, Unfounded) and the 5 measure of discipline. This must occur at each stage of the disciplinary process, and in 6 particular when there is any modification of a preliminary finding of a policy violation or 7 initial determination of discipline, or when there is a departure from the discipline matrix. In 8 the event that any modification to the discipline decision is made, the investigator and any 9 prior decision-making authority must be promptly notified.

10 Procedures must be put in place to ensure that discipline is being issued consistently 11 and properly pursuant to the disciplinary matrix, including periodic review of disciplinary 12 decisions.

13 MCSO should also adopt a policy that prevents the promotion of or salary increase for 14 individuals under investigation, and guidelines for when disciplinary findings should bar 15 future promotions. See Contempt Findings ¶¶ 499-500.

16 MCSO must also ensure that the PSB has all records of past and current investigations 17 in an accessible format, such as a single digitally-maintained file. In order to guarantee that 18 past discipline is properly considered during investigations, records of past investigations 19 must be readily accessible.

20 PSB should also systematically track current investigations—whether conducted by 21 PSB or the principal’s assigned bureau or division—to ensure that they are being handled in 22 a timely fashion. Sergeant Tennyson, for example, was permitted to shelve an investigation 23 for approximately seven months without any oversight or requirement that he report 24 periodically on the status of the investigation. Oct. 13, 2015 Hearing Tr. 2981. Similarly, 25 Chief Rodriguez rescinded a written reprimand against Lieutenant Sousa based in part on 26 inadequate tracking of civilian complaints. Contempt Findings ¶ 529. Policies must be 27 promulgated to prevent these unfair practices from reoccurring.

4. Requiring Use of Best Practices in IA Investigations

The Court found that MCSO relied on flawed investigatory practices, such as conducting interviews in a manner demonstrating that the investigator had prejudged the case and aimed to exonerate the employee, conducting the investigation without adequate discovery or a complete record, and providing witnesses or principals with an opportunity to tailor statements by disclosing documents and other witnesses' statements prior to interviews. Id. ¶¶ 424-32, 451, 588, 609-92, 766-837; Oct. 1, 2015 Hearing Tr. 2089. MCSO must be required to amend its IA policies to set clear guidelines for investigative techniques, and for PSB supervisors to ensure that proper investigative techniques are used.

In addition, MCSO should revise its disciplinary policies to guide and to limit the discretion of commanders during the predetermination or “name clearing” and grievance processes.⁵ The contempt record demonstrates that Chief Deputy Sheridan and Chief Olson changed preliminary findings of Sustained to Not Sustained and reduced discipline based upon the employee's introduction of new evidence for the first time during predetermination or name clearing hearings, or based on the employee's argument that others who were also responsible for the same policy violation had not been held accountable. See, e.g., Contempt Findings ¶¶ 394, 434-572, 752-60. MCSO policy should be amended to prevent this.⁶

C. Training Requirements for IA Investigators and Commanders Involved the Disciplinary Process

MCSO does not provide any training on how to conduct administrative or criminal investigations, and none of the witnesses who were involved in internal investigations—including the commander of PSB and lieutenants supervising investigators—had received

⁵ MCSO's use of the term “name clearing hearing”—which presupposes that the employee's name will be cleared—itself demonstrates that the discipline system is skewed in favor of the employee. The term should be eliminated in the policy revision process.

⁶ For example, in administrative investigations, employees are compelled to provide statements and information. Therefore, any information maintained by the employee that bears on the matter must be disclosed during the investigation. If newly discovered evidence is introduced after the investigation, that evidence should be referred back to the original investigator to be properly considered. If an employee withholds information or seeks to introduce it in an untimely fashion, such conduct should be considered for separate policy violations.

1 any training from MCSO. Id. ¶¶ 826-37. Currently, MCSO expects employees assigned to 2 IA investigations to simply train themselves. See Ex. 2790 (IA operations manual, noting 3 that “it is the responsibility of the individuals working within the division to familiarize 4 themselves with this manual”). MCSO must provide and require training for all individuals 5 assigned to conduct or supervise any internal investigations.

6 D. Ensuring Adequate IA Investigation Capacity

7 MCSO witnesses testified to gross understaffing of PSB. See Oct. 13, 2015 Hearing
8 Tr. 3147-49, 3159; Oct. 1, 2015 Hearing Tr. 2082, 2085. Plaintiffs request that the Monitor
9 assess the level of PSB staffing needed to ensure the integrity of PSB-conducted IA 10 investigations and sufficient review of IA investigations conducted by other divisions or 11 bureaus, and that MCSO be required to increase PSB staffing accordingly.

12 E. Reforms to Investigations of Misconduct by MCSO Personnel that May Be 13 Criminal in Nature

14 In light of the serious misconduct found by the Court in MCSO’s handling of 15 suspected criminal conduct by MCSO personnel affecting the Plaintiff class, the Court 16 should institute reforms of such investigations. See, e.g., Contempt Findings ¶¶ 602-92
17 (describing Sergeant Tennyson’s “perfunctory whitewash” of criminal investigation); 18 ¶¶ 646-47 (MCSO made no effort to locate potential victims of crimes, who were also 19 members of the Plaintiff class); ¶ 750 (Tennyson’s inability to identify a potential crime with 20 respect to a missing $260); ¶¶ 660-69 (approval of Tennyson’s flawed investigatory 21 techniques by the chain of command). MCSO must be required to establish clear policies 22 and procedures on handling internal criminal investigations, including guidelines for 23 deciding when to initiate criminal IA investigations and for the referral of matters for 24 criminal prosecution. Currently, MCSO policy on internal criminal investigations 25 constitutes only half a page. Oct. 1, 2015 Hearing Tr. 2090. Among other things, these 26 policies must address MCSO’s lack of protocols for when MCSO decides to close an internal 27 criminal investigation or declines to refer a matter to the County Attorney, including a 28

1 requirement that such decisions must be justified and documented in writing. Contempt
2 Findings ¶¶ 609-12; Oct. 1, 2015 Hearing Tr. 2091-92. MCSO policy must also set forth 3 what information should be provided to the County Attorney in the event of a referral or 4 consultation on a criminal matter, so as to ensure proper consideration of the matter for 5 potential prosecution. Contempt Findings ¶¶ 679-83 (describing Tennyson's providing 6 incomplete information).

7 The Court found that MCSO has used the pendency of a criminal IA investigation to 8 delay the related administrative investigation, with detrimental impacts on the ability to 9 impose discipline in the latter. Contempt Findings ¶¶ 604-05. MCSO policy should be 10 amended to prevent this. Prompt handling of policy violations through administrative 11 investigations is critical for internal reform. There is no valid reason for criminal and 12 administrative proceedings to proceed seriatim if proper procedures are in place. An 13 employee can be advised of the nature of each interview, receiving a Miranda warning prior 14 to criminal interviews and a Garrity warning prior to administrative interviews. MCSO 15 policy can provide investigators with guidelines on the proper timing of interviews in these 16 instances and prevent the contamination of the criminal investigations with compelled 17 statements given in administrative interviews.

18 IV. Modifications to the Supplemental Permanent Injunction To Address 19 Defendants' Pattern of Noncompliance

20 Plaintiffs propose several additional modifications to the Supplemental Permanent 21 Injunction to ensure that the Defendants' broad pattern of willful noncompliance ends, and to 22 remove structural and policy obstacles to Defendants' future compliance.

23 A. Setting of Deadlines for Compliance with Supplemental Injunction and 24 Implementation of Prospective Coercive Measures

25 As set forth above in Part I, Defendants have broadly failed to comply with the 26 Supplemental Permanent Injunction, as well as the court orders at issue in the civil contempt 27 proceedings. To address this pattern of noncompliance, Plaintiffs request that the Court 28

1 impose new, firm deadlines, backed by prospective fines and other coercive measures to 2 ensure that these deadlines are not also disregarded by the Defendants.

3 B. Supervision Ratio

4 The Court's contempt findings demonstrate a systematic failure of supervision within 5 MCSO. Contempt Findings ¶¶ 568-70, 838-49. This is a serious concern because, among 6 other reasons, Sections IX and X of the Supplemental Permanent Injunction impose 7 important duties on supervisors, including but not limited to: regular review of a random 8 selection of traffic stop recordings, training on and constant use of the Early Identification 9 System to evaluate deputies for signs of racial profiling or other unlawful activity, and 10 review of daily activity reports by deputies. According to the Monitor's Seventh Report (at 11 6-7), Defendants are not in compliance with those provisions. The Monitor identified a 12 fundamental problem reported by Patrol Division commanders and supervisors: "supervisors 13 are finding it difficult to find sufficient time for adequate proactive supervision." Id. at 119.
14 Without sufficient capacity among its supervisor ranks, there is little hope that Defendants 15 can comply with the Court's Supplemental Permanent Injunction.

16 Plaintiffs therefore propose that Paragraph 84 of the Supplemental Permanent 17 Injunction be modified to require a supervisor-to-deputy ration of 1:8. While the Court 18 rejected this same proposal from Plaintiffs at the time the Supplemental Permanent 19 Injunction issued in October 2013 (compare Proposed Consent Order (Doc. 1667) at 41 with 20 Supplemental Permanent Injunction ¶ 84), circumstances have changed. The contempt 21 findings and the Monitor's Seventh Report indicate that the 1:12 ratio is inadequate to secure 22 compliance with Defendants' obligations under Sections IX and X of the Supplemental 23 Permanent Injunction.

24 C. Policies and Practices on Civilian Complaints

25 The Court made numerous detailed findings that MCSO's complaint-intake process is 26 inadequate because it does not reliably track complaints, personnel are not trained on how to 27 handle complaints, and the process lacks consistency and accountability. See Contempt 28

1 Findings ¶¶ 850-67. Relatedly, the Court found that MSCO’s discipline process does not 2 adequately categorize and address civilian complaints. Id. ¶¶ 852, 859-61; see also id. ¶¶ 3 863-65. Based upon these findings, the Supplemental Permanent Injunction should be 4 modified to require that MCSO’s policies relating to the intake and handling of civilian 5 complaints, including their treatment in the internal affairs and discipline system, must be 6 revised to address these systemic deficiencies, and that MCSO must provide training to all 7 sworn-side supervisors and deputies on the amended policies. Further, the Court should set a 8 firm deadline for compliance with the policy and training requirements.

9 The new policies should guarantee that MCSO maintains accurate and complete data 10 regarding the number, nature, and status of all complaints, from initial intake to final 11 disposition. To ensure that all complaints are received and logged, each deputy should carry 12 complaint forms and informational brochures on how to file complaints, and an uninvolved 13 supervisor should be available to receive complaints made at the scene of a traffic stop or 14 incident. MCSO should ensure the public can easily file complaints in English or Spanish by 15 mail, online, or through a free, 24-hour hotline. An ombudsman’s office should be created to 16 take complaints; it should be housed outside of the MCSO but be physically located in 17 Maricopa County. Finally, anonymous complaints and third-party complaints should also be 18 accepted. To discourage officers from retaliating against complainants or failing to properly 19 log complaints, MCSO should also have an anti-retaliation policy that contains disciplinary 20 measures. All of these measures will assist in making sure that all complaints are received, 21 processed, and investigated. See id. ¶ 852.

22 As soon as a complaint is received by MCSO, complainants should receive a 23 reference number and be able to track the status of their case over the phone or online. This 24 will ensure transparency and allow complainants to confirm that deputies have properly 25 logged complaints. See id. ¶¶ 857-89. MCSO should also institute a “testers” program 26 where auditors submit complaints by posing as civilians in order to determine whether 27
28

1 officers are routinely entering complaints into the system and assigning complaints reference 2 and IA numbers. Id. ¶ 857.

3 In addition, all civilian complaints—not just those categorized by a Bureau or 4 Division commander as implicating major discipline—should be immediately forwarded to 5 the PSB upon receipt by anyone in MCSO, and an IA number should be generated. This 6 measure will ensure that civilian complaints are thoroughly investigated and that complaints 7 are not miscategorized at the very outset. See id. ¶¶ 859-61.

8 Finally, in revising its complaint intake policy, MCSO should engage an independent 9 vendor to conduct a study to assess barriers that prevent civilians from filing complaints, and 10 provide a plan to further amend the complaint-intake policy that addresses those barriers.
11 Once the complaint-intake policy is amended, the County should fund a public information 12 campaign to inform the community about how to file complaints with MCSO and how to 13 track their complaints. Nonprofit agencies can be engaged to host complaint drives and 14 liaise with hard-to-reach communities.

15 D. Funding for Outreach Activities of the Community Advisory Board

16 Plaintiffs request that the Court order Defendants to provide for annual funding for 17 outreach activities of the Community Advisory Board (“CAB”). The contempt proceedings 18 have generated a great deal of community concern and eroded community trust in MCSO.
19 The CAB currently consists of volunteer members with no funding for advertising and 20 facilities that would permit them to gather and to disseminate information to the broader 21 community about these contempt proceedings and the ongoing compliance process.

22 V. Compensation for Victims of Defendants’ Violations of the Preliminary 23 Injunction

24 The Court found that “at least hundreds of members of the Plaintiff class ... have 25 been injured by the Contemnors’ past failures to take reasonable steps to implement this 26 Court’s preliminary injunction.” Id. ¶ 879. Although the Court has suggested that 27 compensation might be better handled through separate proceedings, id. ¶ 881, Plaintiffs 28

1 respectfully submit that the immediate implementation of a claims compensation system is 2 warranted and will simplify the process, reduce costs, and ensure maximum access to 3 compensation to the broadest number of victims. This Court unquestionably has the power 4 to order compensation as a remedy for civil contempt. See Inst. of Cetacean Research v. Sea
5 Shepherd Conservation Soc’y, 774 F.3d 935, 958-59 (9th Cir. 2014).

6 Plaintiffs have conducted substantial research on models for victim compensation.
7 After meeting and conferring, they and Defendants (“the Parties”) have reached agreement 8 on many aspects of a proposed compensation system. A document outlining the agreed-to 9 measures and contested measures proposed by either of the Parties is attached at Tab 5a.

10 The County and individual contemnors should be jointly liable for the costs of 11 implementing the compensation system. Gillette v. Delmore, 979 F.2d 1342, 1347 (9th Cir.
12 1992) (“Municipal liability under section 1983 attaches . . . where ‘a deliberate choice to 13 follow a course of action is made from among various alternatives by the official or officials 14 responsible for establishing final policy with respect to the subject matter in question.’”) 15 (quoting Pembaur v. City of Cincinnati, 475 U.S. 469, 483-84 (1986) (plurality opinion)).
16 Sheriff Arpaio should also be personally liable (jointly and severally with the County and 17 other contemnors) for compensating persons who were detained as a result of his deliberate 18 decision not to comply with the preliminary injunction. Because of his primary role in the 19 contempt, Sheriff Arpaio should be required to deposit $300,000 of his personal funds by 20 July 1, 2016, to provide initial funding for a notice and outreach program (see infra Part 21 V.B.2) and for compensation to victims of his contempt. He should not be reimbursed with 22 public funds, although Maricopa County will be liable in case of his nonpayment pursuant to 23 its municipal liability obligations. The County, Arpaio, and other contemnors, Chief 24 Sheridan, former Chief Sands, and Lieutenant Sousa, should be jointly and severally liable 25 for all costs of compensation including those beyond the initial fund of $300,000.

B. Plaintiffs' Proposed Provisions for Claims Compensation System

The Court should adopt Plaintiffs' proposals on the issues that remain in dispute. Without such measures, there will be a substantial risk that members of the Plaintiff class will not be aware of the availability of compensation and will be prejudiced in their ability to obtain just compensation.

1. Scope of Relief

All persons detained by MCSO in violation of the preliminary injunction should be eligible to participate in the claims process. See Ex. 5a at II.B-C. Defendants contend that compensation should only be available to those detained on traffic stops, but the preliminary injunction applied more broadly. See, e.g., Contempt Findings ¶ 158 ("HSU continued its workplace enforcement and other operations . . . in violation of the preliminary injunction").

Further, individuals who were detained in violation of the preliminary injunction after the Court's Order of May 24, 2013 should be eligible to participate in the compensation plan.⁷ The Court made "[t]he preliminary injunction entered by this Court on [December] 23, 2011 . . . permanent" by subsequent orders. Supplemental Permanent Injunction ¶ 58. To the extent Defendants contend that there were no such detentions after May 2013, they will not be harmed by imposition of this measure.

2. Budget for Notice and Outreach Campaign

The Court should set a budget of $200,000 to conduct the type of outreach campaign that has the best chance of reaching class members who were subjected to illegal detentions. This amount is needed to secure advertising on radio stations with the largest Latino audiences and maximize the chances of reaching individuals who were detained. This ⁷ Though the Court is correct that Plaintiffs did not present examples of post-2013 violations as part of the contempt hearings (Contempt Findings ¶ 878), Plaintiffs cannot exclude the possibility that MCSO has engaged in wrongful detentions on the basis of suspected unlawful immigration status after that date. Indeed, at least one document disclosed to the Monitor after the contempt hearing raises that concern. It appears that in December 2015, an MCSO deputy improperly prolonged a traffic stop of a Plaintiff class member solely to inquire about an ICE administrative warrant, which is not based upon probable cause to believe a crime has been committed. See Pls.' Comments on Monitor's Draft Seventh Quarterly Report (Doc. 1667-1) at 2-3.

1 outreach is all the more essential because Defendants have not undertaken independent 2 efforts to locate individuals harmed by violations of the preliminary injunction, and they 3 failed to document all immigration detentions. Contempt Findings ¶ 159. The $100,000
4 proposed by the County will not suffice to notify potential claimants,

5 3. Base Payment for Wrongful Detentions

6 Plaintiffs propose that successful claimants receive no less than a base amount of 7 $1,500 for an unlawful detention and, when detention exceeded one hour, $1,000 for each 8 additional 20 minutes of detention past the first hour. Defendants' proposed base amounts 9 do not provide adequate compensation for the willful contempt.⁸ Plaintiffs' proposed base 10 payment schedule is consistent with damages recorded in similar cases.

11 4. No Cap on Awards for Special Harms

12 Defendants contend that special damages for individuals who were injured or suffered 13 emotional distress should be subject to a cap. The Court should reject that contention.
14 Courts routinely award compensatory damages for physical harm and emotional distress.⁹
15 BrownGreer has sufficient experience and understanding of the range of awards for physical 16 harm and emotional distress and can assess the individual circumstances as they are 17 presented. An arbitrary cap is unwarranted and is likely to leave victims of Defendants' 18 contempt with inadequate compensation. Similarly, there should be no cap on compensation 19 for economic harms, such as lost wages and out-of-pocket expenses, caused by Defendants' 20 contempt. Such awards are entirely appropriate, and courts routinely award such damages.¹⁰

22
23
24 ⁸ See Tab 6 detailing awards granted by courts and settlement amounts for similar detentions.

25 ⁹ See, e.g., Johnson v. Hale, 13 F.3d 1351 1352 (9th Cir. 1994); United Steelworkers of Am.
26 v. Milstead, 705 F. Supp. 1426, 1439-40 (D. Ariz. 1988) (awarding plaintiffs $10,000 and $17,750 in compensatory damages for unlawful detention, including for emotional distress and physical injuries).

27 ¹⁰ See Kamal v. City of Santa Monica, 221 F.3d 1348, 2000 WL 576433, at *1, n.3 (9th Cir.
28 2000); O'Neill v. Krzeminski, 839 F.2d 9, 13 (2d Cir. 1998); see also 22 Am. Jur. 2d Damages § 158 (2016).

5. Detentions by ICE or Border Patrol Should Be Compensated

Class members should receive compensation for all injuries proximately caused by Defendants' contempt. Zelman v. Stauder, 466 P.2d 766, 768-69 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1970) (describing proximate cause standard); Shelburg v. City of Scottsdale Police Dep't, No. CV-09-1800-PHX-NVW, 2010 WL 3327690, at *9 (D. Ariz. Aug. 23, 2010) (noting that more than one person may be liable for proximately causing an injury). The contempt hearing revealed that at least some of these detentions occurred as a result of Sheriff Arpaio's "back-up plan" to offer detainees to Border Patrol that ICE had declined to take. See Contempt Findings ¶ 40. In other cases, MCSO may have transferred individuals to ICE or Border Patrol custody only to see them released once a federal officer had a chance to review the case and determine detention was not appropriate. In both situations, MCSO's responsibility for the initial time in federal detention is clear and BrownGreer should be able to consider that detention and any harms arising therefrom as part of the damages award. Failure to compensate victims for such injury would leave them with a grossly inadequate remedy for MCSO's disobedience of the preliminary injunction.

6. Attorneys' Fees for Successful Claimants

Plaintiffs' desire is that the compensation claims system be non-adversarial and user-friendly. But to the extent that Defendants will contest claims or challenge awards made by BrownGreer, Defendants will no doubt be represented by counsel. To ensure claimants have a fair opportunity to obtain compensation, the claims system should provide for reasonable attorneys' fees, not to exceed a total of $750 or the amount of the award, to a prevailing claimant. This will fairly compensate class counsel assisting claimants in this process, and will help claimants to obtain separate counsel if desired. See Inst. of Cetacean Research, 774 F.3d at 958-59.

VI. Attorneys' Fees and Costs

Plaintiffs' seek an award of reasonable attorneys' fees and costs for (1) the litigation of the instant civil contempt proceeding; and (2) past and future work to monitor and to 1 secure Defendants' compliance with the Court's Supplemental Permanent Injunction. An 2 award of fees and costs is warranted on three grounds. First, Plaintiffs should be entitled to 3 an award of attorneys' fees and costs under 42 U.S.C. § 1988(b) as the prevailing party in 4 this civil rights action, and as the prevailing party in the civil contempt proceeding.

5 Second, this Court has the discretion to award attorneys' fees as a remedy for the civil 6 contempt, in order to coerce future compliance and to compensate the Plaintiffs for the 7 contemnors' past noncompliance. Perry v. O'Donnell, 759 F.2d 702, 704 (9th Cir. 1985).
8 Indeed, the Ninth Circuit has held that fees may be awarded even in cases in which the 9 contempt has not been willful, to compensate the movant for the cost of bringing the 10 contempt to the Court's attention. Perry, 759 F.2d at 705. Here, the contemnors' willful and 11 repetitive violations detailed in the contempt findings (which the contemnors refused to 12 admit prior to the contempt hearing) have required Plaintiffs to expend substantial resources 13 in litigating the contempt proceeding, and Plaintiffs should be compensated.

14 Third, even if there were no finding of civil contempt, and particularly on the record 15 of Defendants' failures to comply with numerous provisions of the Court's Supplemental 16 Permanent Injunction and other orders, see supra at Part I, the Court should award fees for 17 Plaintiffs' past and future work in monitoring the Defendants' activities to ensure that they 18 comport with the Court's Supplemental Permanent Injunction and other orders. As an initial 19 matter, Paragraph 157 of the Supplemental Permanent Injunction already provides that 20 Defendants should pay Plaintiffs' fees and costs "incurred as a result of having to initiate 21 litigation to secure enforcement, should Plaintiffs prevail in such litigation." Even if that 22 provision was intended to apply only to "in-court" work, circumstances have now changed.¹¹ 23 Defendants' systematic and willful noncompliance with multiple court orders, which have 24 come to light after the Supplemental Permanent Injunction, warrants an award not just for 25 ¹¹ The Supreme Court has held that with respect to attorneys' fees provisions, the term 26 "litigation" can encompass fees incurred in monitoring post-judgment compliance even if it 27 does not involve "courtroom" work, so long as it "was as necessary to the attainment of adequate relief for their client as was all of their earlier work in the courtroom."

Pennsylvania v. Del. Valley Citizens' Council, 478 U.S. 546, 557-58 (1986).

1 prevailing in in-court “litigation,” but also for monitoring and securing Defendants’ 2 compliance with the Court’s orders, including but not limited to review of proposed policies, 3 trainings, and other documents; correspondence with the Defendants concerning compliance 4 issues; and participation in meetings with the Monitor and/or Defendants related to 5 compliance.

6 The Ninth Circuit has held that fees may be awarded to a prevailing § 1988 plaintiff 7 fees for post-judgment work monitoring compliance with injunctions and other court-ordered 8 obligations. Balla v. Idaho, 677 F.3d 910, 914 (9th Cir. 2012) (injunction); Prison Legal 9 News v Schwarzenegger, 608 F.3d 446, 452 (9th Cir. 2010) (consent decree); Keith v. Volpe, 10 833 F.2d 850, 855-57 (9th Cir. 1987) (settlement agreement); see also Del. Valley Citizens’
11 Council, 478 U.S. at 557-59 (affirming fee award under Clean Air Act for post-judgment 12 work monitoring defendant’s compliance and construing Clean Air Act provision to be 13 consistent with fees cases under § 1988).¹² Indeed, in Balla, the Ninth Circuit affirmed the 14 district court’s award of attorneys’ fees to plaintiffs’ class counsel for work on a contempt 15 motion that was denied (on mootness grounds because Defendants complied after the filing 16 of the contempt motion), and more generally for monitoring compliance with a permanent 17 injunction.¹³ 677 F.3d at 914-15. In light of this Court’s findings that Sheriff Arpaio and 18 Chief Deputy Sheridan and others at MCSO willfully and deliberately violated numerous 19 court orders, expressed defiance of court orders to subordinates at MCSO, and repeatedly 20 made false statements on the witness stand in this civil contempt proceeding, an award of 21 attorneys’ fees is warranted to compensate the Plaintiffs for the substantial resources they 22 have expended to hold Defendants accountable for their past noncompliance (including but 23 not limited to the three counts of civil contempt). Going forward, an order providing for the 24 ¹² That some of the foregoing cases concerned consent decrees or settlement agreements does 25 not affect their applicability here, as the Ninth Circuit focused on whether the plaintiffs’ 26 monitoring work caused the defendants “to fulfill their obligations ‘more speedily and reliably.’” Prison Legal News, 608 F.3d at 451 (quoting Keith, 833 F.2d at 857) (emphasis added).

27 ¹³ Balla was decided under the fee provision of the Prison Litigation Reform Act, which places additional restrictions on § 1988’s fee standard. See 677 F.3d at 918.

1 payment of fees to the Plaintiffs for this work will help to ensure that Defendants comply in 2 the future with the Court's orders, by providing Plaintiffs with adequate resources to monitor
3 closely for recurrences of noncompliance and by putting coercive pressure on the Defendants 4 to comply. Plaintiffs have had to expend substantial funds and attorney time, even hiring 5 additional staff, specifically to enforce Defendants' compliance with this Court's orders.

6 Plaintiffs intend to file an application for attorneys' fees and costs relating to the civil 7 contempt proceedings and to past work monitoring Defendants' compliance with the 8 Supplemental Permanent Injunction by June 24, 2016, and request leave to submit periodic 9 applications for attorneys' fees and costs for compliance work in the future, until the 10 Defendants are finally deemed by the Court to be in compliance. See Balla, 677 F.3d at 915 11 (noting appellate jurisdiction to review "[p]eriodic fee awards for monitoring compliance 12 with a final judgment"). The County and contemnors should be jointly and severally liable.

13 VII. Inadequacy of Remedies for Civil Contempt and Future Remedies

14 Even if the Court adopts all of the foregoing requested remedies, the Plaintiff class 15 will not achieve full relief for the Defendants' repeated and willful contempt of court. It is 16 unlikely that all victims of Sheriff Arpaio's deliberate violations of the preliminary 17 injunction order can be located and compensated. And as the Court has found, there can be 18 no doubt that evidence of further violations of the rights of the Plaintiff class has been 19 irretrievably lost through the Defendants' discovery violations, spoliation of evidence, and 20 willful defiance of the Court's discovery-related orders.

21 In addition, the Court has found that Sheriff Arpaio and Chief Deputy Sheridan "made 22 multiple intentional misstatements of fact while under oath" in the contempt hearing, 23 Contempt Findings at 3, ¶ 326; that Sheridan made intentionally false statements to the 24 Monitor about two different subjects, id. ¶¶ 229-30; and that Sheridan, Captain Bailey, and 25 defense counsel Michele Iafrate made or caused a deceptive statement to the Monitor in 26 violation of a court order, id. ¶ 348.

1 Under these circumstances, and in light of the Court's specific findings that the 2 contemnors willfully violated the Court's orders, a referral should be made to the United 3 States Attorney, to investigate Sheriff Arpaio and Chief Deputy Sheridan for criminal 4 contempt (18 U.S.C. §§ 401, 402) and possibly for other violations of federal law including 5 perjury (18 U.S.C. § 1621), obstruction of justice (18 U.S.C. § 1509), and making of false 6 statements to the Court-appointed Monitor (18 U.S.C. § 1001).

7 Finally, Plaintiffs believe that the Court's findings (¶¶ 342-48) warrant an order 8 directing Captain Bailey and defense counsel Michele Iafrate to show cause why they should 9 not be held in civil contempt and, as to Ms. Iafrate, why she should not be referred to the 10 State Bar for disciplinary proceedings.

11 CONCLUSION

12 Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court issue an order imposing the foregoing 13 remedies against Defendants and the individual contemnors, as a remedy for the civil 14 contempt and in the exercise of the Court's inherent authority to enforce compliance with its 15 orders to protect the Plaintiff class.
